Young artists and environmental stewards celebrate horseshoe crabs in a Children's Exhibition at Perkins Center for the Arts, Collingswood. Led by the Ecological Research and Development Group (ERDG), a non-profit organization whose mission is to conserve the world's four remaining horseshoe crab species, fiber artist Winnie Radolan expertly guided students' production of visual and literary art works. The students' work has been reproduced and is part of a traveling art exhibition which will be on display until June 26 and continuing to other overseas sites. Artists from grades K – 12 were selected from over 500 submissions. The students hail from Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Singapore, Taiwan and Japan and their work will also be posted on ERDG's award winning web site, www.horseshoecrab.org

Be A Part of It!

Join us for this kick-off for social artworking free programs. During the reception young artists will be publicly recognized for their participation and artistic achievement. Following the ceremony, Winne Radolan, a premier paper making artist from Philadelphia will lead a free paper making activity.

The reception and paper making activity are free and open to the public.
