

ERDG's New Horseshoe Crab Conservation Tool

 us2.campaign-archive2.com/

© Ariane Mueller

ERDG Launches New Conservation Section

ERDG, who is dedicated to the conservation of the world's four horseshoe crab species, launches a completely rebuilt "Conservation" section on its award winning website www.horseshoecrab.org, but it will not realize full potential without your input.

This new "Conservation" section is designed to foster communication between governmental organizations (GO's), non-governmental organizations (NGO's) and the general public, by providing information on who is doing what and where, as it pertains to horseshoe crab conservation. However, as you will notice, many areas are data deficient. Please help us complete this valuable tool by sending us erdg@horseshoecrab.org information about the GO's and NGO's in your country. Specifically, we seek the formal name of the organization, link to its website, what they do as it pertains to horseshoe crab conservation and the geographic area they cover.

You will notice we have also added a "Conservation Toolbox" subsection, which is designed to provide the NGO with mission relevant information around three key headings. Please feel free to send us articles that complement these headings.

With your help, we can bridge the information divide that often hinders our ability to engage the broadest coalition behind the conservation of this remarkable mariner.

We invite you to "Like" us on Facebook for a journey around the world, where our friends and partners share their horseshoe crab conservation efforts, both in the field and in the classroom.
